FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS ABOUT CARGO INSURANCE

What is Cargo Insurance?

Cargo insurance provides protection against all risk of physical loss or damage to freight from external cause during land, sea or air shipping.

When shipping by ocean, doesn't the carrier cover loss of ship cargo?

The carrier's liability for freight moving over the ocean is governed by the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act (COGSA). Under the terms of COGSA, the most you could recover from shipping lines in the event they are proven negligent is $500 for each customary freight unit (CFU). Measurement of the CFU is widely defined, and it can vary from one container to one pallet.

COGSA is centered on the liability of the carrier. At the heart of the concept of carrier liability is the idea that the carrier is not responsible for paying claims if they did not cause or contribute to the loss.

When shipping by air, doesn't the air carrier compensate for loss?

Air carriers limit their liability in a similar fashion as ocean carriers. Under the Warsaw Convention/Montreal Protocol 4, carriers will pay about $26 per kilogram only if proven they were negligent. Again, the burden of proof is on the shipper, and it's often difficult to prove the carrier was at fault.

Why purchase Cargo Insurance?

To reduce your exposure to financial loss if goods are lost or damaged during transit as you are not inherently compensated by the carrier.

If a loss occurs without Cargo insurance, what could I expect to recover?

Although it is ultimately the carrier who bears responsibility for loss or damage to your freight, by law, their liability is surprisingly limited. As previously stated, the COGSA statute limits a carrier's liability exposure to just $500.

Even if I hire an NVOCC, don't they assume carrier liability?

Even if Eastern acts as an NVOCC to assume carrier liability, recovery in the event of a claim is still legally limited by COGSA in the bill of lading terms & conditions.

So, how can I protect my cargo in transit?

Yes, there is good news! Eastern Shipping offers broad coverage at fair and competitive rates. "All Risk" Shipper's Interest Coverage provides the cargo owner with coverage for direct physical loss or damage to the cargo without the need to prove liability. If a loss occurs; you are paid directly and any recovery possible from the carrier will be handled by our subrogation specialists.

What are the advantages of insuring my cargo through the Eastern policy?

- Eastern will report and handle claims on your behalf.
- Covered losses are paid without need to prove carrier negligence.
- Claim payments are based on the insured value, not the weight of pieces missing/damaged or Carrier's limited liability.
- And even after the loss is paid to you, Eastern works with the carrier to ensure your historical losses are minimized.
